Author(s): Candice Torregano, Baker Hughes

A successful multi-generational workforce values and builds on each other's skills and different backgrounds. Our industry now has 4 generations working side-by-side, each with their own communication preferences, work styles, and unique experiences.

Join our multi-generational panel of an industry Baby Boomer, Gen X, Millennial and Gen Z as we get to know how each generation works and plays together. We will highlight sources of potential stress and unique viewpoints from each of the groups to bring a lively conversation meant to keep everyone working together, and transferring knowledge to keep growing our industry successfully.
